

 Carnegie Library
of Pittsburgh

The Fox Who Made Friends With The

by Mrs. Voci

*Once upon a time there was a fox.
He was overjoyed because it snowed last night! The fox was happy. The happy fox cheered.*

*When he looked around he became depressed because he had no one to play with. The happy fox waved.
The fox was sad.*

He noticed a group off in the distance. He was perplexed to see a pirate, alien and a scientist dancing.

The fox approached the group and asked if they wanted to pay with him.

The pirate and the alien said, "No way! There's too much dancing to do". The fox was disappointed.

But the scientist said, "Of course I will play with you! Snow is my favorite type of precipitation!" The fox was astonished!

They were both thankful for having made a new friend! The fox was happy.